How Moulton Managed Tilton in His Disagreeable Moods.

The Difficulties Under Which the "Mutual Friend" Labored.

Beecher's Friends Anxious to Have Mrs. Tilton on the Witness Stand.

NEW YORK, April 12, 1875.

The Brooklyn scandal trial attracted the usual great crowd to-day. Mr. Beecher was present early, and as Mr. Beach passed him on the way to his place in the Court room inquired very particularly about his health. After a few minutes' consultation with his counsel, Beecher mounted the witness stand and continued his testimony, in substance, as follows: At times I visited Moulton's residence every day; at other times not oftener than a week, month or two months; in 1871, after May, there were comparatively few visits until autumn; in this period there was after the publication of the "Woodhull Scandal." I recall two conversations with Mrs. Moulton about Mrs. Woodhull; at one of these she referred to the enthusiasm which her husband and Tilton had for Mrs. Woodhull; at another conversation she asked me what I thought of Mrs. Woodhull, and I replied that my knowledge of her was only derived from what I had heard from others; she said she did not fancy the woman, but Frank thought very highly of her, and she conformed to his desire in having her at the house; there never was a word with her about her receiving Mrs. Woodhull on my account. I never said to her it was a duty she owed Frank to co-operate with him in trying to keep the story quiet; I never told Moulton I thought his wife should act with him in his endeavors to suppress the stories. I never so talked with Mrs. Moulton, and I never told Moulton I did. I had talked with Mrs. Moulton about attending church, and in 1870 I remember her speaking with some anxiety as to securing a seat in 1872 and '73; she spoke to me about having two seats. I referred her to Mr. West and also talked with her; she was kind enough to compliment me on

An Improvement in my Preaching.

from what she had heard others say and had heard herself. I recollect she came on two occasions to church, and I saw her waiting at the pulpit steps. I recollect on two other occasions when I called to see Moulton, Mrs. Moulton said to me: "Why don't you call sometimes to see me, or pay a social visit, instead of business visits to Frank?" I had conversations with her about the difficulty, and had also conversed with her about Mrs. Tilton. I wanted some person to visit Mrs. Tilton and cheer her, and I thought Mrs. Moulton was the very person; after visiting Mrs. Tilton Mrs. Moulton would tell me how she was getting along; she said she did not blame Elizabeth, but on one or two occasions she blamed Mr. Tilton, I think, in regard to his home relations; she spoke of the state of things in the family, and said she would not wonder if there was a separation in the family, and that Mrs. Tilton would go back to her mother. I asked her to tell me if there was any way in which Mrs. Tilton could be delicately helped. We had a conversation about the story that I had alienated from her husband, which I said I had never done; I said if I had it was unintentional on my part and I was very sorry for it; Mrs. Moulton said very little in reply to me upon this point; I felt that my presence and intercourse in the family had brought this mischief on them, for which I felt I was to blame; during all my interviews with Mrs. Moulton at that house she was incapable of accusing me of adultery, or of any crime toward Mrs. Tilton; we never conversed together on that subject, or in that manner; she never did so by allusion or implication, and she never spoke of it being said by any person else; I never spoke to her of any conversation with her being my last; I never said that if Tilton published the letter of apology it was useless for me to try to live it down; I never said I had no hope for Theodore, or said that he was a false man; I never thought so, felt so or said so; she never said for me to go to my church and confess my crime and they would forgive me; I did not say I could not implicate the woman who had given me her love; I did not say that if I confessed my church would not have me, and it would be better for me to go out of life; this was An Improbable Story.

Mrs. Tilton's Affections

She never told me I could still write and hold my connection with the papers. I never said I had a powder on my desk, up stairs, and it would put me out of my trouble; the only powder I knew of was gunpowder, which was kept up stairs; this whole story is preposterous and false; I never said to her in conversation that I would come on the day following and give her some gifts for friends, with messages for them, and one gift for Elizabeth; this is pure, absolute fiction; I never told her I suffered the tortures of the damned, having to appear in my church with a cheerful face, in this connection or the relations imputed in this conversation; I said this in view of the manner in which Tilton was constantly bringing up the difficulty, and I said it should end or it would wear me out; this latter was in conversation on May 31st, at their house; Mrs. Moulton did not tell me that Mrs. Tilton had expressed sympathy for her (Mrs. Moulton) in that she had lost faith in Beecher and had left the church, and that she (Mrs. Tilton) had implored her to go back, that Beecher was not guilty, that she was the guilty person. I do not think she could have looked me in the face and said half of it; in October, 1873, Mrs. Moulton did not tell me Mrs. Tilton said she

rather than myself and for the sake of the church; it was in regard to the charge of alienating Mrs. Tilton's affections from her husband that I said she was a good woman, and that Mrs. Moulton should trust her, and I said that my age and experience should have led me to foresee and prevent any such trouble. On the 13th of July, 1874, I had a short conversation with her; Mr. Moulton told her I had read his short statement and thought it would do; she said she was glad to hear it; I had no conversation with her in July, 1874, in which she said Frank was angry, and I said the church had called a committee and I could not prevent it; I had called the committee immediately on seeing the Bacon letter, and popped like a man when he saw a partridge rise; no conversation took place between us in which she said I ought to have confessed long ago, and had now added four years of perjury and lying to the original crime; I never said that I would rather die than confess; I never hesitated to say that Tilton was and later that he was a heartless man, and that if he entered into a contest with me I would worst him; no conversation occurred in which I said the blame was not Mrs. Tilton's, but that I would take all on myself, as I was the guilty party; Mrs. Moulton never told me of conversations with George C. Robinson, in which he expressed surprise that I should go to Moulton's office when I had so many friends in Brooklyn, and that he thought something was wrong; that I had embezzled the church funds or committed some great crime, and that she said to him that I had committed adultery, she having it by confession from both me and Mrs. Tilton; that she told me that I could talk to Mr. Robinson, who now knew all the facts; she never said a word of it to me. (Beecher slapping his knee with great vehemence) Robinson has a pew in my church, and continues his attendance there; at an interview I did say I had spent a sleepless night in the family; Mrs. Moulton never said I should tell the truth, as it would come out sooner or later; she never used these words to me; the first time I heard this was when I sat in the audience; I never said I could not confess, as my work would then be finished, that my family would be ruined, and that my people would never forgive me; I may have said in her presence, when the proposition was put to me to turn aside from the desk and take hold of the paper, that this was not my avocation or calling to take charge of a paper; I never said if I confessed my people would never forgive me, or treat me as kindly as she had done; we never had a conversation in which she said it would be a cowardly thing for me to take my life; I did not see her on the 2d of June; on the 31st of May I saw both Mr. and Mrs. Moulton; I was not then lying on the lounge with a pillow and covered with an afghan or blanket; I never was so disposed of; I never said I saw no way out of it, that my life of usefulness was ended; nor did she suggest that I should go to the church and confess, and that Frank would go with me; I did not say to her that I never got any comfort from her or that she seemed to me like

Brooding Over the Troubles

A Section of the Day of Judgment.

I never used such a comparison to her; she seemed more to me like a bank of spring flowers; I never promised on that day to call on the next with some mementoes, nor did I say that Mrs. Tilton had sinned through her affection for me; I never spoke to Mrs. Moulton of the breaking out of the truth as a crime; I said to Mrs. Moulton that I was averse to any person coming to Mrs. Tilton's family and talking about the troubles, but I never said that while trying to restore the harm she had done by her confessions, he was all the time making it worse; in all my conversations with Mrs. Moulton she never suggested or implicated me as having intimate relations with Mrs. Tilton; the topic never was referred to in any of our conversations.

The Court here took a recess.

After the recess the examination of Mr. Beecher was resumed.

Q. Mr. Beecher, there was an interview between you on the 31st of May, 1873, and in reference to an interview on that day, with Moulton without the presence of Tilton, or with Tilton. If Tilton was present at any such interview, was there in any conversation between you and Moulton, or Mrs. Moulton, or with one in the presence of the other, any conversation regarding your affairs, their affairs, of what was to be done or should be done, in which the word was used by either of these gentlemen in regard to you or the subject which was talked about? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Beecher, in all this matter between you and Tilton and Moulton, going on from December, 1870, until the summer of last year, when was the first notice or intimation to you of a charge, or of the use of the word "crime," in any conduct, that you were charged with on the part of Tilton or Moulton? A. It was conveyed to me through Mr. Redpath, at Peekskill, and then only, unless it occurred in an interview about the Bacon letter, but I do not think that word was asked in that interview.

Q. The word "crime" was not used in that interview about the Bacon letter? A. No, sir; aside from that, to the best of my recollection, if it did not occur then, my first learning of it was through Redpath, at Peekskill.

Q. Now, sir, was that the first notice or advertisement on the part of Tilton or Moulton that you were or were to be accused of adultery with Mrs. Tilton? A. It was.

Q. Now, in regard to any conversation immediately preceding or immediately following the publication of what is known as were there such conversations in which you took part, and with whom? A. Yes, I had conversations with Moulton. I had ceased to have meetings with Tilton. They were very rare, if at all, but with Moulton I had conversations during all the time of the council in March, 1873. I think it was 1873 or 1874, and in regard to the address which was reported in the papers, purporting to be Dr. Bacon's address to the theological class, and in regard to the five letters, if there were so many, or articles which Dr. Bacon published in the New York Independent, and then in regard to the reply which Tilton was preparing to Bacon.

Q. Now, prior to the publication of the Bacon letter, what interview between Mr. Moulton and yourself can you recall bearing upon that meditated ——? A. Well, I am not giving any one single interview, but I can give you the substance of several, for they were substantial productions, with very little variation of some trains of thought.

Managing Tilton.

Moulton was extremely unwilling that Tilton should write and publish a letter of that kind, and he labored, as he told me, in various ways to dissuade him from it, that is, from the publication of it. He told me it would be best, perhaps, to let him write it out, and repeated what he had said on former occasions, substantially, that the best way to manage him when he got into one of his dissatisfactions was to let him write it out, and then when he had in some sense expended himself in his literary effort, to attack and control him, and it was in one of these prior conversations that I learned from Moulton that it was Tilton's intention to introduce into his letter "the Bacon letter," the substance of the letter of apology, or whatever name may be given to it, and we had several incidental conversations, one just preceding its publication. He represented that Tilton and he had been in New York the night previous at a friend's house, and that there had been several persons called in consultation, and that they had all striven, as I understood, to prevent the publication of the letter, but that in his determination to publish it, that then Moulton addressed himself to taking out of it some harsh expressions which he said were in the letter, and that he had finally succeeded, making it, he said, a great deal better than it would have done. There was unnecessary severity in it, and that, I think, is the last conversation I had with Moulton on that subject after the letter was published.

Q. Well, after the letter was published, did you then have any conversation, with the letter before you, or in mind, or between you, concerning what had been done by him in any change from what it would have been but for the change? A. I never read the letter from that day to this, sir. As I recollect, I may have read a portion of it since the trial began, but the letter was not written to me before.

Q. The letter was not shown you? A. Was not shown to me. I knew nothing of its contents except as they were represented by Moulton and after the letter appeared. I was at Peekskill when it appeared, I think on Thursday. I telegraphed to Moulton that I would see him next day at six o'clock at my house. There was between us. I came down on the two o'clock train on Friday, and called at Cleveland's on my way to my house, and found him in consultation. I then made the first steps toward calling an investigating committee, telling him the plan I intended to pursue.

Moulton No Longer a "Mutual Friend."

Q. Telling Moulton? A. No Cleveland, and at that time came to my house. We had a conversation, of which I remember but little, for I had dismissed from my mind wholly the idea that Moulton could be successfully any longer a friend of both parties. He brought, however, with him a document which was wishing me to admit that I had committed no offense.

Mr. Evarts—The Carpenter article? A. Yes, and I said to him: "I am going to have some friends here to-night. I will confer with them and see you again."

Mr. Evarts—It is stated, I believe, to be Carpenter's handwriting. Now, I will read this: "This church and community are unquestionably and justly interested, through a recent publication by Theodore Tilton in answer to Dr. Leonard Bacon of New Haven. It is true that I have committed giving that offense the force of his conversation. I made an apology and reparation such as both he and I at the time deemed full and necessary. I am convinced that Tilton has been goaded to his defense by misrepresentation or a misunderstanding of my position toward him. I shall never be a party to the reopening of this question, which has been settled as between Theodore Tilton and myself. I have committed no crime, and if this society believes its duty to be that I should reopen this already too public subject, or resign, I will resign. I know, as God gives me power to judge of myself, that I am better fitted by going through trials and chastening to do good than I have ever been."

An Offense Against Theodore Tilton,

Q. Now, sir, with that before you, what was said by Moulton in regard to its publication by you? A. I don't remember much about what was said the first evening, sir. My mind was running on other things, and

and I had dismissed from my mind his generalship, and yet my personal relations were very cordial and my confidence in him personally was very strong, and I didn't wish in any way to hurt him or to be indifferent to what he really seemed to be laboring to accomplish. Yet my mind was set. I had got to the end, and I meant to have no more intermediate stages, and I, therefore, when this was first brought to my notice, said that I will consider it. I will take it into consideration. That, so far as I recollect, was the first interview substantially

Q. Well, what further passed between you and Moulton in regard to this card and its publication, or what could be done if you assented to it? A. Mr. Moulton urged me very strongly. As I recollect the conversation, it was this, that Tilton had said himself, in the presence of witnesses, if I would publish that statement that he would be content himself, and Moulton said if I would publish that statement he would burn every document he had, and if Tilton ever undertook to move again in the matter he would turn against him and fight him. He expressed himself very strongly. I think the words he used were he would

"Smash Him."

Q. Did he say to you anything in regard to the power that he had over Tilton? A. Yes, sir; many, many times. He said "I can grind him to powder." He spoke imperatively of his control over Tilton.

Q. What was your answer in regard to your signing for publishing that card? A. I would never sign a card after the Bacon letter with that equivocal word "offensive."

Q. You told him such? A. I told him I would not, and I did not.

Q. What was the end of the matter about its publication; was there anything further about it; was the subject renewed in any way? A. I cannot say definitely. There was still up to the very session of the Investigating Committee more or less of an effort on the part of Moulton to accommodate matters. He thought that the publication of the Bacon letter had not brought things necessarily to a crisis. I thought it had, and he, with great assiduity and with vehement zeal, thought that there could be by which we could all go clear even at that stage. I said we could not, that the thing must be pried into, looked into to the very bottom.

Q. Was this card intended or proposed for newspaper publication, or to be read to your church, or otherwise presented? A. I don't know that the particular mode of issuing was a matter of consideration. I don't remember about it. It was in form; it looked rather like being read to the church, but as I didn't particularly regard it in any way, that is, I didn't give it much thought, except that the opening phraseology was an ineffectual bar to its being used by me in any way.

Q. Do you recognize any conversation between you and Moulton as to this paper having been submitted to Tracy and you approving or disapproving of it? A. It may very easily have been, but I don't recollect any such conversation. There were a good many consultations about the Bacon letter. There was a card prepared, an introductory card, which was submitted to me, I think as a sort of basis for this other one. I am about that many interviews, many suggestions, and tentative forms were produced before the Bacon letter was published, but I refused to consider them, but after it was published I was indisposed.

Q. Now, sir, do you remember Moulton reporting to you any such interview between himself and Gen. Tracy as this: "I met Mr. Beecher on July 25th, I think, and I said: 'Well, Mr. Beecher, you have not uttered from your pulpit, or any where given utterance to the words that I prepared for you, at least I have not seen any such expressions.' And he said: 'No, you advised silence particularly.' 'Yes,' I said, 'I advised silence, but I think you have had a good opportunity to make that expression,' and I said 'At the Friday evening prayer meeting your church seemed to be in entire sympathy with you, and I think you might have availed yourself of that occasion to have made that expression,' and he said, 'Well, I am not to blame for that. You advised silence, and I have followed the course you advised.'" And then this card is put in evidence that you have just had in your hand, and witness proceeds, and it is to this part that I wish to call your attention particularly: "I had a subsequent conversation with Beecher about it, and I told him that I had seen Gen. Tracy concerning a reply to the Bacon letter, and that I had asked Gen. Tracy if he had submitted the paper to him, and I said to Beecher that Tracy's reply was that he had seen a paper in which he thought he detected and that Tracy had said to me that the words 'I have committed no crime,' which is a part of this card quoted from it, really said nothing in denial of the fact as alleged by Mr. Beecher against, or as to the fact between Mr. Tilton and Mr. Beecher" (the witness corrects himself), "or Mr. Beecher and Mrs. Tilton's relations, that as nearly as I could remember the words he said 'I have committed no crime,' did not mean anything, because adultery was no crime under common law. That is as nearly as I could repeat it, and I said to him that I had told Gen. Tracy that I did not think that was a good objection, that I thought the community would accept that card as a distinct denial of that utterance rather—that that utterance would be accepted by the community as a distinct denial, and that it ought to be made, or some such utterance should be made, since Beecher assented and since Tilton assented to peace if that utterance was made or if silence was kept."

Q. Now, Mr. Beecher, do you remember a conversation in which Moulton brought to your attention an interview that he had with Gen. Tracy on the subject of force and the effect of this card? A. I have no distinct recollection of any such statement as is made there.

Beecher's Objection to the Publication of the Card.

Q. What was the objection that you stated to the publication of that card? A. My objection was that after the publication of the Bacon letter nobody could understand the offense, or everybody was at liberty to understand the offense as they pleased, certainly that it was that I had made improper advances toward Mrs. Tilton, and I wouldn't stand it.

Q. And you would make no publication that contained that admission? A. I would not agree to any such statement. I would not sign any such statement. I would have nothing to do with anything that could mislead the public.

Q. Now, whether the word "crime" was used or not in either of the conversations that Moulton had with you preceding or following the publication of the Bacon letter, was there at that time any suggestion or intimation from Moulton that the charge against you was any other or different from what had been the subject of imputation—the improper advances? A. That was what he understood and what he conveyed to me, and what I understood.

Q. So that the announcement made to you by Redpath, as coming from Tilton and Moulton, that they intended to charge adultery, was the first notice of the imputation or charge on their part? A. It was the first statement to me. It was the first time I suspected that it was ever thought of.

Q. Well, the first statement to you? A. At any rate, I knew it then for the first time as part of their plan.

Q. Now, Mr. Beecher, in regard to what have been known as was the text or form of them ever laid before you or communicated to you [handing witness a paper]? A. No, sir; I don't remember ever to have read them. I knew what they were—I mean at the time; that is, I knew the ground they covered without knowing much about them particularly.

Q. Now, in the spring, or early summer, when the matter was first brought up, what did you understand the charges were confined to? A. I understood that they were charges brought against Tilton for having slandered me in reporting that I preached to forty mistresses, or some other number.

Q. Yes. A. And that they only related to what were called generally "the Bowen slanders or charges."

Q. The Bowen slanders? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in the Fall, in regard to the third clause or item, how much knowledge had you on that subject? A. I don't think I had any. The ground I took was such that I could not very well have any knowledge about it.

Mr. Fullerton—Don't reason about it.

The witness—I beg pardon.

The Third Charge.

Mr. Evarts—Now, in regard to the third charge, or item, that involved any relations with Mrs. Tilton, the imputation against Mr. Tilton of having made charges in respect to Mrs. Tilton and yourself, was there any communication to you in writing or otherwise of any other charge in that relation than the charge of improper advances? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I call your attention, Mr. Beecher, to some statements of Tilton's testimony. Mr. Tilton speaks of an interview that he had with you, I imagine somewhere about October of that year, at any rate it was in the fall. Now, Mr. Beecher, in reference to these West charges and in that fall, that autumn, did you have any discussion or conversation with Tilton in which Tilton's conversation with West about these charges and about your guilt was talked of. A. I don't know.

Q. Mr. Tilton says that he said to you in such interviews that during the summer he (Mr. West) had changed his mind on that subject, and had come to the conclusion that Beecher was the guilty man; that is, I must go back a little further: "Mr. West had visited me during the summer and had substantially indicated to me, though he didn't say it in plain words, that he (Mr. West) had originally instituted these charges against me in June because he thought I was really guilty of slandering Beecher, that during the summer he (Mr. West) had on that subject, and had come to the conclusion that Beecher was the guilty man, but that having brought his charges before the church in the regular way, he desired that they should be called up in the autumn, and he urged him (Tilton) to appear before the church to answer the charges; that in answering them I would throw the blame where it belonged and clear myself. Do you remember any interview with Tilton in that autumn after those West charges were brought upon the carpet in which any conversation of that kind occurred? A. I do not. I heard rumors, but they were rumors I cannot tell from whom.

Q. Well, the question is whether you had any such conversation? Do you remember Tilton saying this (reading): "I told him, however, that West was guarded in his expression, and would not say absolutely that he believed in Beecher's guilt, only that if Beecher was guilty he was acting during the summer as a guilty man would act, and exactly as an innocent man would not act?" A. I remember no such language, sir.

Where it Occurred.

Q. Now, Mr. Beecher, the end of all this matter. I understand it occurred at some church meeting or meeting of the church or society, where Tilton was present and made some observations, an address, and you also followed him. Now, calling your attention to that scene, please state the matter as it occurred as you recall it? A. Well, sir, I cannot give you a very detailed statement of the question. I certainly cannot without giving a statement of the position to which we had come in our church deliberations through the committee. The Friday meeting was a meeting, if I recollect aright, to receive and act upon a report from the examining committee, and as that report was essentially this, that the name of Tilton be dropped from the roll, and as I had talked with Moulton and with Tilton as to the progress of things, it was coming to that issue. He appeared in that meeting.

Tilton Explains.

Q. Mr. Tilton? A. Mr. Tilton. He went—asked permission of the chairman to make some remarks, and as a courtesy it was granted, and he then proceeded to make some remarks. The point of them was that he had not slandered the pastor of the church, or if he had—the pastor had—any charges to make on that subject against him, he was there, to have them made then and there or words to that effect. That was the substance of it. He assumed the position of a man not a member of the church, but declaring that he had not slandered the pastor, and if the pastor thought he had, he was there to receive those charges. I had not expected to speak in the evening, but I did, and after making some remarks in respect to the general principles of our church, I, in the close, alluded to the remarks that were made by him, and said that whatever differences had existed between Tilton and me had been and were, so far as I was concerned, buried; that I had no charges to make against him, and that I believed he had none to make against me, and with that the speech ceased; and then, after voting (I think he remained to the end)—after voting in the meeting, Tilton was congratulated on the successful termination of the difficulty, and shook hands with my most intimate and cordial friends, and went home happy.

Q. In what you said, Mr. Beecher, in regard to the difficulties being buried, whatever they were, or however you spoke of them, was anything said by you to their being buried on Tilton's part? A. I cannot say—affirm. I said they had been amicably settled between us, and so far as I am concerned they were buried, that I had no charges to make against him, and that I believed he had none to make against me.

Q. Now, Mr. Beecher, I call your attention to a statement of Tilton's in answer to this question, which will show the subject. On cross-examination by me, the question was: "What was there in that situation that made Beecher responsible for any of these offenses against you that you find in Dr. Bacon's—it should be in Dr. Bacon's statement. A. I will tell you, sir. Mr. Beecher came out of his church one night, as I have described in my direct examination, meeting Moulton and me against the iron rail, saying he could that they would do exactly what he wished, that he held them in his right hand, and any action which Mr."—I believe that is the end of what he says. You said "saying he could control his church, that they would do exactly what he wished, that he held them in his right hand." Q. Did you make a statement of that kind to Tilton? A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. In reference to the situation after the Bacon or any other time? A. I did not, sir.

Mrs. Tilton.

The Tribune to-morrow will say motives of delicacy alone have not kept Mrs. Tilton from attending on Court since Beecher went on the stand. She expects to succeed him on the witness chair, or certainly to follow Mr. Cleveland, as the concluding witness for the defense. Mr. Beecher's counsel are unwilling to admit that it is their fixed purpose to call Mrs. Tilton, but from other sources of information it is known that such is their determination. It is known with certainty that Judge Neilson has declared that he will permit Mrs. Tilton to testify if both sides will consent to it. The defense recognise, perhaps, that public sentiment demands an offer of Mrs. Tilton's testimony, and they will make an offer, for according to Beecher's friends. They want her testimony, in the first place, being satisfied that it will corroborate Mr. Beecher in every particular, and introduce a needed narration of the circumstances under which the defense allege that the confession and other papers were forced from her by her husband. The second reason is that if they do not get her testimony, it will place the plaintiff in the position of excluding it, and this they believe will strengthen their case before the jury and public. But whether the plaintiff takes this position or not the direct testimony of Mrs. Tilton under oath will be given to the public.

Two Reasons,

Beecher's Bluntness.

Once during the testimony to-day Beecher broke out in his blunt way, to the effect that Mrs. Moulton could not have used the expressions attributed to her, and then probably remembering that she had sworn to them in court, he added, after a long pause, "of her own accord." This was lost on Mr. Evarts for a moment, but being reminded of it by one of his associates, he called attention to it, and tried to introduce Beecher's explanation of his words, but Mr. Beach objected, and threatened to have it struck out, and Mr. Fullerton said the meaning was clear enough and improper, so Mr. Evarts desisted. The context shows that Beecher meant to imply that she had sworn in accordance with some other person's wishes.

No Talking to the Jury.

Some surprise was expressed at orders to the officers, given by Judge Neilson at the close of the morning session, to see that the jury were not spoken to while entering and leaving the Court. On inquiry of the Judge, it was learned that Mr. Morris had complained that some of the Plymouth members had been needlessly polite in saluting jurors.

The direct examination of Beecher will likely be finished to-morrow.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Proceedings of Parliament.

LONDON, April 12.—In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Lewis asked what course the Government would take if the independence of Belgium was imperilled in consequence of her rejection of Prussia's demands.

Disraeli replied that there had been great misrepresentation and exaggeration in this matter. The Prussian note to Belgium was not a menace. It was only a remonstrance. No rejoinder had been made to Belgium's answer, and he believed the question was concluded. Germany had shown her cordiality for England by communicating to her the correspondence.

In conclusion, Disraeli declared that were Belgium's neutrality really threatened, Her Majesty's Government were prepared to do their duty to the sovereign and would not fear to meet Parliament.

GERMANY.

Not Inspired by the Government.

BERLIN, April 12.—The Berlin Post states that its article of the 9th instant indicating the possibility of war was not inspired by the Government.

BY MAIL.

From Australia.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—By the steamer Mikado, Australian advices to March 13th are received. The steamer Helen McGregor, on a voyage from Grafton to Sydney, struck the reef on which the steamer Urara was lost. She remained on the reef an hour, floated off and sank in deep water. The passengers and crew were saved in boats, except one boat load of eight persons, who were lost.

There are no hopes of the recovery of the missing boats of the steamer Gothenberg, lost in Torres Straits on February 25. Only twenty-two of the passengers and crew were saved. All the officers were lost.

The Postmaster Generals of New South Wales and Victoria have made an agreement, subject to ratification by their respective Governments, to facilitate the transmission of foreign mails. They propose to make Suez and San Francisco services alternate as early as possible.

The late drouth has been succeeded by heavy floods in the coast districts on Hunter river. There is great damage to crops. Settlers are flooded out and cared for by the Government. Hon. W. M. Arnold, Speaker of the New South Wales Assembly, was drowned while endeavoring to recover floating property. At West Maitland, Patterson and Morpeth the water stood several feet deep in the streets. There is great destruction of city and country property. From the Clarence, Bellinger, Macleary, Hastings and other rivers, similar disasters are reported. No loss of life is reported.

Agricultural intelligence from various portions of the colonies is favorable, except in the flooded districts. Late rains have removed the fears entertained on account of the drouth.

Floods are reported in Queen's Land, with great loss of property and much suffering. Many lives were lost.

Mining news throughout the colonies is generally of a satisfactory character.

From Auckland, news is received that the four million loan, bearing 4½ per cent. interest, has been taken by the Rothschilds at 93 cents, which gives great satisfaction.

THE MINERS' WAR.

The Military Not to be Recalled at Present—Additional Troops for Hazelton—An Impression that the Strike is Nearly Ended.

HARRISBURG, April 12.—In accordance with General Latta's report, the Governor has decided not to recall the military until all danger of violence in the Luzerne coal regions has disappeared.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—A detachment of ninety members of the First Regiment National Guards will be despatched to Hazelton this afternoon. There is no possibility of the troops being recalled.

POTTSVILLE, April 12.—The impression generally prevails that the miners' strike is nearly ended.

THE WEATHER.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER,
WASHINGTON, 1 A. M., April 13, 1875.

Probabilities for To-day.

For New England and the Middle States, generally cloudy, cool weather and light rain, with brisk northeast to southeast winds and falling barometer.

The Ohio river will fall slowly.

THE Williamsport Gazette says the lumber shipments from that point for 1875 amount to 22,941,650 ft., being a falling off as compared with same time last year of 29,499,149 ft.

SECOND EDITION

H. Waters for clothing and funeral expenses of soldiers' orphans. C.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Treasurer Spinner's Resignation Accepted.

Money Temporarily Borrowed by Banks Not Taxable as Capital.

WASHINGTON, April 12, 1875.

Appointments.

Jas. G. Potter has been appointed Internal Revenue Storekeeper for the Eighth District of Kentucky. The President has appointed Volney U. Smith, of Arkansas, as United States Consul at St. Thomas, West Indies, and Joseph Knotts, of Iowa, United States Consul at Chihuahua.

Court of Claims Decision.

A petitioner before the Court of Claims represented that from March 3, 1869, to December, 1870, he was First Lieutenant of infantry in the army of the United States; that of the compensation he was entitled to receive by law during that period of time $683 were withheld for an alleged reason, and no other, that he had been ordered home to await orders at his own request, and was, therefore, virtually on leave of absence. The Court to-day rendered judgment in favor of the claimant, and also in the cases of twenty-five others who made similar representations, the sums awarded ranging from $200 to $1,300.

Treasurer Spinner's Resignation Accepted.

Treasurer Spinner to-day received an autograph letter from the President accepting his resignation as Treasurer of the United States, and expressing for the retiring official the warmest sentiments of regard personally, together with a high appreciation of his well-known probity, patriotism and official integrity.

Counterfeiter Recaptured.

The following was received this afternoon: "AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—To Hon. Geo. H. Williams, Attorney General—We have recaptured the notorious counterfeiter, Pete McCarthy.

(Signed) "THOMAS T. PURNELL, "U. S. Marshal."

Supreme Court Decision.

The Supreme Court to-day decided that money temporarily borrowed by a banker in the course of business is not taxable as capital.

TEXAS.

A Raid Across the Border Into Mexico—Fifteen or Twenty Americans Arrested at Camargo—A Brownsville Ranchero Missing—Mexicans Preparing for Another Thieving Expedition.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, April 12.—The News' special says Mr. Airey, United States commercial agent at Camargo, writes to Consul Wilson, at Matamoras, April 6th, that a few days previous the Camargo authorities received notice from Miere that a party of fifteen or twenty armed men had crossed from Texas and were proceeding towards Camargo. When they reached there eight of them were arrested, three in town and five at a ranche. The three were examined by the Chief of Police, who told Mr. Airey their horses had American brands, and many articles taken from them were evidently American. Mr. Airey asked the Mayor of Camargo to let him see the horses and articles. He refused, but said he had telegraphed his request to Matamoras. The prisoners are said to be on their way to Matamoras. Consul Wilson has notified Judge Dougherty, and proposes to aid the authorities in any action they may take. The Judge is compelled to hold court in Judge Ware's district. He sent a telegram to the Mayor of Corpus Christi, and has taken steps to have the horses and articles identified, should they be brought to Matamoras.

Alexander Moral has been missing some time. He left here to visit a sheep ranche and carry supplies. His horse has been seen with a party of raiders returning to Cuevas' ranche, in Mexico. Morel's brother has been hunting his body without success.

J. M. Callen has received notice from Mexican sources that one hundred men are at Charco Escondido, thirty-five miles back of Reynosa, Mexico; also that raiders are introducing men into Brownsville to fire houses and commit robberies. The feeling here is "fight, leave, or have your throat cut." It is a mere question of time as to the assassination of the few Americans living in the valley of the Rio Grande.

THE LATEST NEWS.

—David P. Louie, the recently appointed Chief Justice of Utah, has arrived at Salt Lake.

—At Vineyard Haven, Mass., on Monday, the residence of Philander P. Clifford was burned. His sick wife, unable to leave the room, perished.

—At Clinton, Mass., on Monday, the grocery store of Alden Thayer was destroyed by fire. Mrs. Geo. Dinsmore and her father, who occupied rooms over the store, were burned to death.

—On Monday morning, John Johnhalter, Peter Johnhalter, George Orr and Peter Adams, while engaged in sinking a coal shaft near Massillon, Ohio, were killed by the earth caving in upon them. Anthony Howells had both legs broken, and was rescued with great difficulty.

—A New Orleans dispatch says that in compliance with a call of Speaker Wiltz, some sixty Conservative members of the Louisiana Legislature met in caucus on Monday to consider the proposed withdrawal of Wiltz in favor of some Speaker less objectionable to the radical members. The movement is strong and actively urged, but Wiltz will not withdraw.

—By invitation of Gen. Pennypacker, Federal commandant at Nashville, Gov. Porter, an ex-Confederate officer, reviewed the troops at Ash Barracks on Sunday afternoon. The novelty of the scene attracted a crowd of between 5,000 and 8,000 people to the grounds. On the appearance of Gov. Porter and his civilian staff the band struck up "Hail to the Chief," followed by a national air, creating a great deal of enthusiasm. The event is looked on auspiciously by everybody present.

THE military are not to be recalled from the Hazelton region, the conduct of the miners not being satisfactory to the Governor.

THE committee appointed by the Legislature to look into the accounts of the State Treasury, for several successive terms of the past, will meet at Harrisburg to-day to organize, and take a preliminary survey of the work before them.

THE Democratic members of Councils are evidently disposed to submit to the authority of the Courts, so far as administering the oath to Mr. Magee is concerned. We rather like this willingness to obey the law,—it is a refreshing indication of pure-mindedness.

VICE PRESIDENT WILSON seems to be a gentleman of uncertain mind, these days. He has reconsidered his intention of going to Europe, so great is his respect for the law of custom, which is against a Vice President going to Europe during his term of office. The custom referred to existed before he announced his intention to go.

THE failure of Captain Boynton to reach Boulogne, in his trip across the English channel, was caused by darkness coming on, and not any failure in the success of his invention. He walked thirty-two miles, and was within eight miles of the shore when, owing to darkness, he was taken on board a vessel. It was a remarkable voyage.

THE contrast between McCloskey and Manning, the newly created Cardinals, is quite noticeable in the addresses they delivered on the occasion of the recognition of their new honors. The American is genial, kind and peaceful in his address while the Englishman is full of war and fire. Can it be that the policy of the Church differs, as applied to England and America?

POSTMASTER GENERAL JEWELL is of the opinion that the Texas and Alabama mail letting frauds are but a part of a general system, and he is disposed to analyze all the contracts around which there is any suspicion. In the meantime, the clerks involved in the discovered frauds have been arrested, and are to be rigidly prosecuted. It seems evident that a pretty thorough sifting will take place, both in contracts and employes in the Postoffice department.

THE Treasury-nomination contest is narrowing a little. Senator Strang has withdrawn, and Mr. Ketchum is understood not to desire the nomination. Rumor places Mr. Rawle, of Erie, in the fore-front as the most likely to reach the nomination. We have already referred to him as the ex-Mayor of Erie, and a shrewd, genial, worthy gentleman. A few days may make some changes in the situation, but this is the outlook as it appears just at the present time.

A SERIOUS charge has been started against Secretary Robeson,—that he has been using the Navy Department workshops to manufacture costly furniture for himself and friends. An investigation was proposed, but the persons making the charge refused to appear unless the investigation was public. Hence no investigation has really taken place. His reputation requires that he should fully clear himself of the charge, as it is equivalent to declaring him a thief.

IT HAS been currently remarked that the Winter, in and around this city, has been very unhealthy during the past Winter, but the complaint is very general. The vital statistics, so far as gathered, show that in the Southern States, and even in Northern Europe, the rate of mortality has been unusually high. The cold moist atmosphere developed certain diseases,—as pneumonia, diptheria,—to a remarkable extent, the per centage of deaths rising ten to fifteen per cent. above the average. Thus the one cause operated uniformly, and at all points, was productive of unfavorable results, as to health.

GOVERNOR HARTRANFT, in a letter addressed to the New York Herald, gives, in brief, a statement of what this State has done toward the Centennial. Two and a half millions of dollars have been voted, besides what has been subscribed by individuals. As to exhibitions, he says: "The gentlemen connected with the Geological Survey are also making an extensive and valuable collection of minerals; statistics will be gathered and arrangements made to show the practical working of our school system; our myriads of manufactories will exhibit their multiform products after the manner of the Mechanics' Institute Exhibition in Philadelphia last Fall, where the variety and extent of the articles displayed amazed every visitor, and the manufacture of iron and steel will be fully represented by those engaged in these great Pennsylvania industries. The railroads of the State will exhibit engines, cars, and the various appliances and improvements used to secure comfort, safety and speed in the conduct of their roads. The historical, art, scientific and other societies, as before stated, will all have present substantial proofs of their research and progress, and the systems of our trade and commerce, and their various channels will be pointed out by our commercial and trade exchanges. A number of these interests and societies have already perfected organization with a view to the Exhibition, and others are preparing to do so." This shows that Pennsylvania does not lag behind in the good work.

REVIVALISTS.

The Cincinnati daily press are discussing the labors of Messrs. Whipple and Bliss, the Evangelists, in contrast with those of the regular clergy. The point of the discussion is that the regulars should not be behind the Evangelists, in all the elements of success. They know more of theology, are trained speakers, and should, if they were equally earnest, be able to accomplish at least equally much. All that the Evangelists are and accomplish is fully admitted, and the contrast is, therefore, to the disadvantage of the clergy. The thought must have occurred, in much the same light, to many others. Why should not the clergy wield the same remarkable power, —if such it be,—that the lay Evangelists show? To our mind a lack of directness and earnestness is the chief reason. Preaching is a profession, as law and medicine are. Men prepare scholastic or thoughtful sermons, as the case may be, to meet a demand that exists in their congregations. The Evangelists strike directly at the convictions of the people, and seek immediate, tangible results. There is nothing in their method, or their addresses in itself, superior. They are probably inferior to many ministers in point of force and culture. Were the ministry to rouse itself, it could certainly achieve quite as remarkable results as has been done by the Evangelists. The revival at East Liberty, conducted by the regular ministry, during the past Winter, was in every way as remarkable as any by lay Evangelists; and had it been under the charge of the latter, would have been widely noted.

Moody and Sanky have gained a reputation in England which probably aids them and affords a reason why they should be foremost in their work. Our view is, however, that it matters not whether evangelists be lay or clerical, so they be successful; but there is no good reason why one class, as a class, should be successful more than the others. If the clergy will not rouse themselves to the work, they must, of course, fall into the background, and others will take their laurels; but they should do the work. The Cincinnati press, speaking from observation, intimates that the prominence given the layman militated against the standing and influence of the clergy. How far this may be true, we do not undertake to say; but it is natural that the tendency should be in the direction named. There is still another particular in which possible injury may be done—in creating the impression that a Church is prosperous only as it is in the excitement of revival. The work of training in doctrine and discipline is equally important with other features, of which more account is made. It is evident that the exact bearing of lay evangelism on the general prosperity of Churches will yet receive searching attention.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

A remark made by a city cotemporary, apropos of a suggestion to establish an Industrial School in this city, in a manner that will bring it within the range of the $1,000,000 annually appropriated by the State for public education, that none of that money shall go for any purpose other than common school education, embodies such a misapprehension of facts that we will seek to correct it in a few particulars. No subject is more anxiously considered, by the Governor, and State School Department at Harrisburg, than that of Industrial education. It is held that there is not a State in the Union in which such education is more important. Whether our children grow up in comparative affluence or poverty, their lives must necessarily be spent, either in directing or participating in skilled labor. It is also held that these Industrial Schools must be made a part of our public school system. The Constitution does not define the limits of the public school system, but provides that the $1,000,000 required to be set apart annually shall be used only in the public school system. Hence, if Industrial Schools are made a part of that system,—as High Schools and Normal Schools now are,—there is no difficulty whatever in having a portion of the million dollars go for this purpose. Nor is the public school system defined by law. We have nothing as a guide on this subject, and it is well, as the scope of common school education is being continually extended and improved. Hence whatever is adopted by the State Department as the beginning and thus part of a general system, that is, or is intended to be applied to the entire State, may be regarded as part of the Common School system,—whether it be Primary, High, Normal or Industrial Schools.

The present status of this question is this: The State authorities are anxiously solicitous for the development of Industrial Schools in the State, have no difficulty whatever in extending State aid, provided these schools are under the control of regularly constituted public school authorities, but as yet, they have no clearly defined plan for such system. The Governor's idea is that the State should, out of the $1,000,000 pay the salaries of teachers, and thus support such schools, wherever established. The Mechanics' High School Board proposes to be engaged in developing sentiment on the subject, and hence is without a plan. It has recommended experimental appropriations by the Legislature, but the recommendations were so palpably experimental that the Legislature would do nothing. Hence the State is without a policy, but is willing to aid any possible undertaking that shall embody a policy. There is neither difficulty nor hesitancy up to this point.

The proposition, therefore, for the Central Board of Education to take steps toward establishing such a school has many recommendations, and no valid objections. The successful starting of such a school will in itself develop a clearly defined policy on the subject. This will be, to locate first, in the great manufacturing centres, such institutions. Pittsburgh of right should have the first, as it is, par excellence, the great manufacturing city of the State. And it must be under the control of the Central Board, in order to accord with the view that to receive State aid it must form a part of our public school system. It will also make a start, which is the most important thing of all. The State school authorities are beset by the jealousies of different localities, and can do nothing for this reason. Let a start be made, here or elsewhere, and there is a positive anxiety to aid.

The tenderness as to using the $1,000,000 set apart annually for public education, would not be felt, if the facts which cluster about that appropriation were fully understood. We will state a few of them: At the last session of the Legislature, $3,000 of this sum was voted to a School of Design for Women,—a corporate institution in Philadelphia, that is entirely private in its nature. It is not controlled, in the slightest particular, by the public school authorities. At the same time, $50,000 of the $1,000,000 were voted to a nautical school in Philadelphia. This is clearly distinct from our public school system, yet the vote for the appropriation was nearly unanimous. Thus the million dollars is not so sacredly regarded in Philadelphia, as it seems to be here. In the distribution of the million, this city receives, all told, about $35,000,—while Philadelphia, under legislation secured last Winter, receives 53,000 in excess of her appropriation for public schools. More than this, it is not a hardship or injury to other parts of the State that we should have $100,000 toward establishing an Industrial School. The outlay, on account of the million appropriated last year, was about $856,000,—or $144,000 less than the appropriation. Hence there was a surplus which, could it be availed of, would complete the cost of establishing the school referred to, without touching in the slightest on the million appropriated for the current year. Thus it is evident that Philadelphia is unconstitutionally drawing on this fund, while Pittsburgh hesitates to put itself in position to get even what could be rightfully and constitutionally had.

Pittsburgh ought to have the honor of developing the policy of the State in regard to Industrial Education. Her Public School system is, at this time, acknowledged to be the best in the State. Our High School, amid many difficulties has grown to be one of the best in the country. We have citizens who have done more to give impetus to every right movement in education than have nine-tenths of the professional educators of the country. The time has come when we may have, if we will, at a trifling outlay, an Industrial School, that will certainly receive the sympathy and support of the State authorities. If the movement is not started here, it will be elsewhere. If we do not receive the aid above referred to, others will. If this great industrial city lacks the enterprise to take the first step toward industrial education, other cities of less manufacturing prominence will manifest it, and carry the honor and prize away. The subject is of deep interest to the people of this city, provided the desire for a technical school is all that it is represented to be. If there is no interest in the subject, it does not, of course, demand attention in any way. If there is an interest, the practical questions are, Is this a proper time for securing such an institution, and what methods shall be resorted to? If our own citizens are to be taxed for the expense, the plan is not material. But if the institution is to be brought within the public school system, it must be through our Central Board taking action. If it shall develop any policy,—no matter what, —that shall be consistent with the fundamental law, thus placing Industrial education at the option of all the children, we will soon have Industrial schools in every part of the State. If it shall not act, we are confident that Philadelphia will, ere long. In that event she will grasp what we throw away.

Mr. Wellington proposes to exhibit this relic at the approaching celebration of the Centennial anniversary of the Lexington battle.

A CURIOUS parallel to the story told by the Tichborne claimant has recently come to light in England. It is said to be an actual occurrence, which took place in the very neighborhood in Australia where the claimant first appeared. A young English nobleman having fallen into dissipation left England, sailed about the world, and finally reached Australia. There he took service as a shepherd, and for several years kept sheep for a farmer. One day, while packing up something in a piece of an English newspaper, his eye was caught by an advertisement stating that his father had died, the title and property fallen to himself, and offering £200 for his discovery. The shepherd-lord actually managed to get the money offered for the discovery himself, drank it up, but has refused to leave Australia. Knowing the family banker, he sends pretty regularly for money, but he has never, like the claimant now in prison, sent to a different banker from the one with which he himself had ordered his money to be deposited.

A STRANGE comment on the inefficient working of the treaty against slavery entered into with the Sultan of Zanzibar has reached us. It appears that the man engaged as interpreter on board Her Majesty's ship Thetis has positively been arrested on board that ship, and forcibly withdrawn from his service under the British flag, by order of the Sultan of Zanzibar, the man being a slave of a class not affected by the treaty, and the captain of the Thetis had no power to prevent his return to slavery.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

THE general business of the country presents an encouraging outlook.

THE quantity of Bessemer steel ingots made in England for the past five years is given as follows, by competent authority, in gross tons: In 1870, 215,000 tons; 1871, 329,000; 1872, 410,000; 1873, 496,000; 1874, 540,000.

IT is certain that a movement is on foot for the establishment of a large iron and steel works at Chicago. THE Wilmington and Reading Railroad is announced to be sold by the Sheriff of Berks county on April 22, at the Court House in Reading. The company failed to pay the interest coupons on the 1st of April. The mortgage on the road is $1,250,000. It also has a large second mortgage, the coupons of which were defaulted on the 1st of January, 1874. Some of them have since been funded.

RECENT lettings of contracts for Bessemer rails in France have been made at the rate of $62.75 per ton of 2,240 lbs.—equal to $73 per ton in our currency at the present price of gold. Third-class four-wheeled passenger cars were let at $775 each; Martin steel locomotive tires at four cents a pound; car-axles at 4.4 cents per pound; spiral springs at 10.4 cents per pound, and freight cars at $290 each—all in gold.

HISTORICAL.

The Battle of Bunker Hill.

Rev. Dr. Tarbox delivered a lecture on the Battle of Bunker Hill, at the meeting of the New England Historic-Geneological Society, Boston, Friday evening last. Some years since, he said, an important work was issued on the fifteen decisive battles of history; among these is named the defeat of Burgoyne at Saratoga, though it is difficult for us to see its supreme importance. We think that the battle of Bunker Hill was far more important in its consequences. For some years the British Government had been concentrating troops to the number of 10,000 in and about the city of Boston, which had then a population of 17,000. About 16,000 raw American troops had gathered about the city in a sort of semi-circle, under the command of General Artemus Ward. General Gage was rather afraid to try and break this line, however contemptible it might be in a military point of view. Two days after the Lexington skirmish, General Israel Putnam arrived at Cambridge from his farm in Pomfret, Conn., and advocated a more offensive policy. For some time there had been talk of fortifying the heights of Charlestown, and there is no doubt that Putnam urged the completion of the work. He was undoubtedly the leading spirit and commander de facto of the Massachusetts army. Dr. Tarbox proceeded to give a cursory description of the battle and its consequences. He thought the numbers engaged were from 2,000 to 3,500 Americans to 5,000 British. The English victory was well commented on by an Irishman in that service, who remarked, "Indade, we have gained but a loss." Dr. Tarbox concluded by an eloquent tribute to the courage and character of Israel Putnam, who, he said, was the commander, if there was any one commander, of the Americans at Bunker Hill.

An Obliging Hotel Guest.

The other evening, a kind-looking old man was escorted to a room on the third floor of a hotel to pass the night, and it wasn't five minutes before the bell indicated that he wanted to see a waiter. A colored boy ran up, stuck his head into the room and asked what was wanted. The old man said he didn't want anything, but the waiter was hardly down stairs before the bell rang again.

"Did you want suffin?" inquired he, as he reached the room again.

"Nothin," replied the old man as he opened the door.

In about two minutes the bell rang again and this time the waiter exclaimed:

"If you don't want nuffin' what are ye pullin' the bell fur?"

"I want to oblige the waiter," replied the old man.

"De waitah! Oblige do waitah?"

"Yes; it says here, 'Please ring the bell for the waiter,' and if he wants it rung I'm willing to oblige him, though I'm tired and sleepy, and shan't pull it more'n four times more, unless I know that some of his family are sick."

Spinner's Father's Romance.

General Spinner is of German parentage, although born in New York, and although he is the last person whom, to look at, would suggest anything romantic, yet there hovers over his early childhood and around his parents' career a very charming little love story. His father studied for the priesthood, and entered a monastry with the determination to bid farewell to the world, the flesh, and his satanic majesty. But the trustful blue eyes of a German Madchen looked up bewitchingly at him, between each pater noster, until his beads were forgotten, and glimpses of golden hair and Marguerite's fairness occupied the hours apportioned out for penance and mortification of spirit. It turned out as such affairs almost always do—earthly love conquered the spiritual vows of the devotee, and, to escape the maledictions and persecution of his brotherhood, he married his charmer and came to America, that blessed land of the free and home for such wanderers. And Francis E. Spinner was the eldest born of this love marriage.

Latest Advices Concerning Money and Stock Matters.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, April 13, 1875.

There was less activity yesterday than has for a time prevailed, and the banks were but moderately busy. It was not regarded as either singular or unfavorable that this was so. Since the first of April there has been a steady accumulation of funds at the banks, and the demand for loans has been almost nothing. As a rule those who needed loans obtained them before the first, and as the increased activity in general business has been productive of cash there has been no occasion for discounts. When our manufactories start, it is generally conceded that the money market will tighten, at least for a time, and this will give place, after the first stress is over, to an active market. Despite the declarations of the manufacturers, the opinion still prevails that the mills will start ere long. There is but twenty-five cents difference between the demands of the puddlers and the offers of the manufacturers. The strike has lost to Pittsburgh considerable trade, and strong effort will be required, when the mills start, to draw it back.

There is a strong inducement of hopeful feeling here, based on the idea that is everywhere prevalent, that our iron trade will soon be established again. From all surrounding points the reports continue hopeful.

—Gigantic combinations for speculative or trade purposes are the order of the day. The latest one is the new combination of the petroleum refiners, for the purpose of permanently advancing the price of refined oil and of bringing the railroads that transport the oil to terms. It is estimated that the combination now controls not only a large part of the wells in the oil region, but also three-quarters of the refining capacity of the country. So far as New York is concerned, all the large refiners, with the exception of two, are promoters of the combination, and with one of those they have made a "running arrangement" at a price which, any other year, would have been considered ruinously low, and they are now making desperate efforts to capture the other one. The efforts of the combination are to be directed mainly to the increase of the margin between the prices of crude and refined oil, and they claim that when they are once in entirely working order and have become about the only shippers of oil, that the several trunk lines to the interior will be glad to accept such terms for transportation as they choose to present.

—England has taken a hint from France and has been economizing, thus the budget about to be presented by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to Parliament will give the following exhibit of finances for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1875: Total revenue from all sources, £74,922,000; excess of estimate, £636,000. The reduction of expenses and excess of receipts gives the Government a surplus of £1,133,000.

—One of the notable features of the times is the great increase of legal business as a result of the panic. It is estimated in some quarters that there are from 30 to 40 per cent. more suits pending in the Courts now than two years ago at this time, and that this increase is due almost entirely to the panic.

—The ore from the Newburyport silver mine, it is said, increases in richness as the shaft goes down. The latest essay yielded at the rate of more than $6,000 to the ton. Six hundred feet of land, on the Boynton lode, was sold last week for $160,000 to persons in Springfield, Mass.

—The specie shipments for last week from New York were $593,992, of which $402,600 was Spanish gold, $50,500 American gold, and the remainder silver coin and bars. The imports of specie for the week are as follows: Gold coin, $360,400; bullion, $290,500; silver, $3,600. Total, $654,501.

—The Supreme Court of Massachusetts has decided that a savings bank is not responsible to the depositor, after paying the money on presentation of the book, even though the same be presented by a thief.

NEW YORK, April 12, 1875.

Money was more active this afternoon, and advanced to 7, but closed at 6; prime mercantile paper 5 to 7, with a tendency to lower rates. Sterling was firm at 486 for sixty days and 490 for sight. The customs receipts were $530,000. Gold was firm at 115¼@115⅜, closing at the latter price. The carrying rates were 1, 3 and flat. The Assistant Treasurer disbursed $87,000. The clearings amounted to $28,000,000. Government bonds were strong. Railroad mortgages were firm. State bonds were dull, but strong. The stock market was active and fluctuating during the first hour of business, but afterwards became dull and irregular, Erie being particularly strong and Pacific Mail, Canton and Quicksilver weak, the last mentioned tumbling to 18¾ on the reported serious illness of Daniel Drew. One lot of 5,000 shares was sold at 20 in the semi-panic in Quicksilver. Later on, the market became steadier, but during the afternoon the whole market was dull and weak under the lead of Union Pacific, which declined from 73¾ to 71. At the final close the market was steady, with some recovery in Union Pacific, Pacific Mail and Quicksilver. Drew has been quite ill, but was better this afternoon. The transactions aggregated 181,000 shares, of which 28,000 were Pacific Mail, 27,000 Western Union, 41,000 Erie, 6,000 Lake Shore, 8,000 Ohios, and 54,000 Union Pacific.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS—WEEKLY REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, April 12, 1875.

The weather continues clear and pleasant, very seasonable, and all that could be desired for general business, which, while it is improving slowly, is considerably behind what it should be and usually is at this season of the year; furthermore, it is not reasonable to expect that there will be much of an improvement in our city trade as long as the lock-out continues, as there are so many people out of employment. The leading markets continue to gain in strength, and for some articles a sharp advance has been established; and furthermore, the tendency is still upward. Flour is higher; Mess Pork and Lard and Corn and Oats have appreciated in value, as have also some other articles of minor importance, to which it is unnecessary to refer. However, the demand for goods of all kinds continues light, being restricted mainly to supplying immediate wants, as it appears to be the determination of the trade generally to carry no more stock than is absolutely necessary.

APPLES—The receipts during the past week have been small, unusually so, but with a very limited demand the market continues exceedingly dull, and there has been no perceptible improvement in prices; dealers all concur that they never experienced so dull a market, and furthermore, prices are unusually low, ranging from $1,50@2,50 per bbl, as to quality, size and condition. It is said that there are still plenty in first hands, and the prospects for an improvement in the market are not very encouraging, so far at least as Pittsburgh is concerned.

APPLE BUTTER—There is no improvement in the demand and no change to make in quotations; 45c ⅌ gallon for common and 50@55c for prime to choice; the stock is not large, although fully up to the demand.

ALE—Trade continues quiet, and while the repeal of the local option law may increase the consumption hereafter, it has not had much effect as yet. We continue to quote X at $9 ⅌ barrel to the country and $8 to city; XX, $10; India Ale, $11. Half bbls in regular proportion.

ASHES—There is a fair demand but no change in prices, which we quote as follows: Common Soda, (48 ⅌ cent) 3¼@3½ cents; refined, (57@58 ⅌ cent) 4@4½; Pearlash, 8@8½; Potash, 7½ to 8c; Fluor Spar, 2c; Manganese, 6½c Arsenic, 6.

BEESWAX—There is little or no call for this article in this market, except in a retail way, and, in the absence of sales, we continue to quote nominally at 27@30c ⅌ lb.

BROOMS—The demand for Brooms continues large, buyers are evidently convinced that they cannot go any lower, and may advance at any time, and are laying in stocks. One of our manufacturers has during the past ten days sold about 1,000 dozen to the home trade alone. Orders are coming in from sections where heretofore country broom makers always supplied the demand, but who have now generally ceased operations owing to the great scarcity and high prices of Broom Corn. We quote:—No 2 common, $2,75; No 3 Hurl, $3,00; No 4, $3,50; No 5, $4,00; No 6, $4,25; No. 3 Carpet, $4,50; No. 4 do, $4,75; fancy, Parlor, $5.00; Wisps, plain, $1,25@1,75; Wisps, fancy, $1,50@2; Toy Brooms, $1,50@2,00.

BROOM CORN—While we have no change to note in this article, our reports from the west show a strong disposition to advance prices, more especially in the finer grades of green hurl and short brush. The demand for small brooms at low prices has caused manufacturers to order largely of short brush, and it is claimed that the stock has not been for years so low; we know the stock in this market is nothing compared to what it usually is, and that the bulk of what is held here is in the hands of manufacturers. We continue to quote: green hurl, 13@15c; green inside and covers, 11½c to 12½c; red tipped, 9 to 10c.

BEANS—With liberal receipts, the supply accumulating and a stronger disposition to realize, the market is weaker and prices lower; sales of strictly prime navies to the trade at $1,90, and mediums cannot be fairly quoted above $1,80@1,85 ⅌ bushel for prime—these rates, as already intimated, are for round lots. The feeling prevails, however, that the market will improve again in the course of a few weeks, and as the decline was caused by an increased supply, not from any falling off in the demand, just as soon as the arrivals commence to fall off, the market will stiffen up again. We look for an increased consumption during the next three months, as they will doubtless more or less be substituted for potatoes, in consequence of their being so much cheaper.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—2¾@3c ⅌ lb.

BROOM HANDLES—Choice No. 1 plain, $17@18; good, $15@16; choice No. 1 painted, $28@30; good No. 1 painted, $25@27; Toy Handles, painted, $20@22,50.

BUTTER—There has been a very fair demand for strictly prime table Butter during the past week or two, and with a limited supply prices are fully maintained, but the lower grades, with which the market is largely overstocked, continue exceedingly dull, and holders are anxious to close it out; sales of prime to choice rolls at 25@28c; medium to good quotable at 18@22 and common to fair at 12@15. This has been a hard season on shippers, nearly all of whom will lose heavily, not only here but elsewhere, as there appears to have been a general overproduction last year, and there is Butter being sold here now at an actual loss of from 10 to 15 cents ⅌ pound.

CHEESE—There has been a fair local trade during the past week, and while the market is considerably behind what it usually is at this season of the year, it is all that can be expected; there has been no change whatever in prices within the past sixty days. We continue to quote, in a jobbing way, at 16½@17 for prime Ohio, and 17@17½ for New York. Our latest advices report a steady export demand, and the general outlook is considered favorable for holders, although the indications are that prices will not go much, if any, higher.

CANNED GOODS—The market continues dull, unusually so for this season of the year, and devoid of any new features to which reference has not already been made; prices have undergone no change since the date of our last report. We continue to quote, in a jobbing way, as follows: Peaches (3 lb cans) $3,40@3,50 ⅌ dozen; Tomatoes, $1,75@1,85; Corn, $2,50@2,60.

CEMENT & LIME—Youghiogheny Cement, $1,75@2 ⅌ bbl; Louisville, $2@2,25; Keystone, $1,75@2; Rosendale; $2,25@2,75; Portland, $7,50@8,00. Calcined Plaster—French's, $4@4,25; New York, $3,50@3,75; Eastern, $3,25@3,50; Michigan, $3,25@3,50. Lime—Manufacturers have advanced rates, which last year afforded no margin for profit. We quote Cleveland, Fremont, Sandusky, and Gibsonburg at $1,05@1,15, and Eastern at $1,50.

COKE—There is a continued fair degree of activity, orders are still coming forward quite freely both from the east and west, and makers generally have about all they can do; the general tone of the market is firmer, but prices remain as last quoted; $2,00 ⅌ ton delivered free on cars in Pittsburgh.

COAL—Bituminous Coal is selling in barges and boats, deliverable in the river at the Monongahela bridge, at 3¼@3½c ⅌ bushel for lump, and 3¼@3½ for nut. Anthracite Coal, by the carload, $7 per ton.

CRANBERRIES—Continue quiet and unchanged at $10@12 ⅌ bbl, as to quality.

CORDAGE AND ROPE—Trade in this branch of business continues quiet, and devoid of any new or important features; the demand is light, confined to supplying immediate necessities, while prices remain unchanged. Following are the current quotations:

DRIED FRUIT—The market continues quiet, unusually so for this season of the year, and notwithstanding the supply is light as are also the receipts, it is fully up to present wants, and prices remain as last quoted. Apples, 7@7½ for common to fair and 8@8½ for prime to choice. Peaches, 8½@9 for halves. Blackberries, 9@10c. There may be an improved demand within the next month or so, but the general outlook just now is not very encouraging.

EGGS—The receipts have been on the increase for some days past, and with a stronger disposition to realize in consequence, prices are weak and declining; we now quote at 17@18.

FEATHERS—Firm. Sales at 53 to 54c for choice in round lots, with the usual advance for jobbing lots.

FLOUR—The market has stiffened up very materially since the date of our last weekly review, and we have advanced our quotations 25c per bbl; and, furthermore, the indications just now are favorable to a still further rise, in sympathy with the continued upward tendency of Wheat. We are reliably informed that some of the Western millers have put up their prices 50c, and even 75c ⅌ bbl, as compared with the lowest point, and there is no question but they have been obtaining an advance of 25 cents for some weeks past. In consequence of an active competition, it is difficult to get prices up in this market, and dealers, for fear of losing trade, will continue to sell at rates at which they know perfectly well it cannot be replaced, and it is only when they come to stock up and pay the advance that they put up prices on their customers. We now quote, in a jobbing way, as follows: Spring wheat flours, $5,50@5,60; Minnesotas, $5,85@6; winter wheat, $5,85@6 for red, and $6,25@6,50 for amber and white. Three-fourths, if not more, of the flour sold in this market is from the west; the mills here, it appears, are unable to compete with it. Rye Flour in light stock; $5,75@6.

GROCERIES—Coffee—During the past week Rio has ruled steady, with a fair business doing. Importers show no signs of weakness, though a dull business for the moment prevails, but, on the contrary, manifest considerable steadiness. The stock of Rio at all the ports, in first hands, is 136,769 bags, and of other grades 20,152 bags, with a large stock in second hands. Sugar stronger at an advance of ⅛ for all descriptions. Rice, Syrups and Molasses unchanged but firm.

GRAIN—The grain markets have stiffened up very materially since the date of our last weekly report, under the influence of recent advices from the west, our chief source of supply, and an advance in prices has been established. The receipts for some weeks past have been light, which was owing to the fact that dealers could not obtain cost, buyers refusing to pay the advance, and the result is stocks are very much reduced, both in the hands of dealers and consumers, and prices tending upward. There has been no movement in Wheat in this market for several weeks, and while there is little or none coming forward or offering, there does not appear to be much inquiry for it; it is doubtful whether any better prices could be obtained, although at the same time it could not be laid down here by from 3@5c per bushel as compared with a month ago. The fact is, this is not much of a market for Wheat, as mills here in the present condition of affairs, are unable to compete with western flours; herein is where the trouble lies. The Oat market continues very firm, and with a fair demand and limited supply, prices have further advanced; we now quote at 67@68 for mixed, and 69@70 for white. Corn is also in limited supply and higher, with a continued upward tendency; quotable at 78@82, according to quality—there was a sale on Saturday of shelled at 81½c, free in elevator. Rye is also firmer with but little offering; quotable at $1,12@1,15. Barley is quiet—not enough doing in this market to establish quotations.

HAY—The receipts of baled have slacked off somewhat, but with a supply fully equal to the demand, there has been no improvement in prices; prairie, $16@18; timothy, $19@21. Loose, from country wagons, $25@30. Oat Straw, baled, on track, $16@17; Wheat Straw, $13@14.

HEMP—In limited supply and with light demand, but prices still keep up; sales Kentucky rough at $175@180; double dressed, 13½@14c.

HIDES—The market remains quiet for all descriptions except plump heavy steers, which are in good demand. Kip and Calf are in fair demand and scarce. Prices unchanged. We quote:

" " " Heavy	10@10½ "
" " Calf	12@13 "
Green butcher bulls	5 "

LEATHER—The general market is much the same as at last reported. Fine light spready Harness is in good demand; medium weight is dull and low; heavy in fair demand; Upper, Kip and Calf are very dull; rough Leather is in better demand. We quote:

MAPLE SYRUP—Is in light supply, and the most of what is held is old stock; quotable at $1,25@1,30 ⅌ gallon jug.

ONIONS—$3,50@4,50 ⅌ bbl, according to quality and condition. Onion Setts, $7@7,50 ⅌ bu.

POULTRY—Market bare of dressed poultry. Live Chickens, by the coop, 65@75c ⅌ pair according to size.

PEA NUTS—Demand improving; sales of choice red at 7c: choice white, 8½ to 9 cents. Stocks here light.

POTATOES—With increased receipts, especially within the past few days, the market is easier, and the inquiry just now is mainly for small lots to supply immediate wants, and as compared with this time last week, prices may be quoted down from 3@5c per bushel; $1,00@1,05 ⅌ bushel on track, and $1,12@1,15 from store—the inquiry, as already stated, is mostly for small lots.

PROVISIONS—The product of the hog rules high all round, except Sugar Cured Hams, which are relatively lower than any other description. It is a noticeable fact that Clear Bacon Sides have been sold, in Cincinnati and Chicago, as low as Sugar Cured Hams something unheard of before. PITTSBURGH TOBACCO MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, April 12, 1875.

The Tobacco market has not abated in its signs of briskness, and the activity noticed in our last report has continued; the sales for the last few weeks have been large, until the latter part of last month, the change in the rate of tax had no perceptible effect on the market, as with heavy stocks, holders met the demand freely upon a basis of old prices. The desire to sell at ruling rates was stimulated by the perfect lethargy existing in all other departments of trade, and jobbers welcomed the opportunity of making sales even at old figures, which paid a good margin, rather than hold stock with prospectively higher figures assured in the nearest future. But since the advent of April, there seems to have been infused new life into the general lines and avenues of trade, which has caused a noted advance in manufactured Tobacco. Upon grades ordered from factories which were there with old stamps affixed an advance of 2c is firmly established, while Tobacco paying the full tax of 24c, an advance of 4c, brought fully that much more. This is especially true of Louisville Navy and fancy styles and Lorrillard Tobacco, while we know several instances where Virginia Tobaccos have been sold at merely an advance of 2c, though the goods paid the full advance of 4c. With a continuation of the present demand, the stocks of Tobacco in the hands of dealers will be sufficiently reduced by the first or middle of June to admit of entirely new stocks being placed upon the market, at which time we expect to see prices not only in full conformity with the existing rate of tax, but still higher in addition, as a marked activity in trade all along the line will soon rid manufacturers of what little stocks they have on hand, and the condition of the leaf market, which, in the face of a stagnant winter kept firmly advancing, is such that they must get more money for the manufactured article or stop. We warn our country friends—and from a standpoint of disinterested observers, our advice to them should be carefully heeded—not to allow their stocks of manufactured Tobacco to decrease in the delusive hope of seeing lower prices, as they will surely be compelled to pay large advances yet to come before the first of September. Our prediction regarding common cigars, made in our last semi-monthly review, have been verified, and we still notice a sluggish movement in that article. Although the Revenue tax has been advanced $1,00 per M, ordinary brands of Pennsylvania goods can be bought at old figures, as if such advance in tax had not taken place. The cause of this can be traced mainly to the season of the year, which throughout the cheap Cigar regions is considered one of general settlement. All contracts made during the year at whatever time throughout Lancaster, Berks, York, Lebanon and other Eastern counties where the manufacture of common cigars is mainly carried on, are entered with a view of settlement on April 1st, and as from this rule there is no deviation or extension, money circulates there very freely and is in great demand at this season, hence manufacturers that owe largely must throw their article on the market and sell at hand-obtainable prices to realize. Failures for that reason are only heard of during this season of the year in that section, and we have to chronicle the bankruptcy of several large Eastern manufacturers, whose stocks have been thrown upon the market at very low figures. From this state of affairs, however, there must be some early recovery, as the manufacturers who have weathered through at low figures are holding their stocks, and from now on must realize the additional dollar, as at old prices there is a sure loss to them in the manufacture of that class of goods. Our views expressed in regard to Wheeling Stogies have also been realized, and prices now are very firm; in fact we hear of no sales at less than $11,60, and of many at $12. Even at that price there is no margin to the manufacturer at Wheeling who now sells to the jobber in lots of ten thousand and over at $11,50 to $11,60, for after paying $5 tax, $2,50 for making, $2,50 for leaf and 25c for boxes, he has only 25c to 40c a thousand left for a profit, and he would have to sell ten million Stogies to make $2,500, and that is about twice the production of all Stogies manufactured at Wheeling, where the making of that class of cigar is almost a speciality in the Tobacco line; still that class of manufacturers whose name is legion and who make a livelihood on what Tobies they roll up themselves will always keep the prices of these goods at nearly cost, and we don't see any probability of a further advance in Stogies, the last advance having, however, this significance: retailers who have sold Stogies 4 for 5c, can do so no longer, as at $12 a thousand there would be no margin left whatever, so the consumer while he will still buy the same Penna. cigar at 2 for 5c, even when the additional dollar is realized—will lose one Stogie in every five cents worth. "Uncle Sam" is to be thanked for it, while he has the delectable consolation that he is giving one Stogie out of four to help pay the National Debt. Oh! ye patriotic Stogie smoker.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, April 12, 1875.

The crude market continues steady with a firmer feeling, although there has been no quotable advance in prices since Saturday; quoted at $1,70@1,72½ per bbl at Parker, and $1,85@1,87½ in bulk barges delivered here. Our refiners generally continue to buy pretty freely, being anxious to secure all they can get while navigation continues, as the cost of transportation by river is considerably less than by rail, and, furthermore, the impression prevails that there is little or no risk in stocking up at quoted rates. Refined continues quiet and unchanged; 11½c is bid for spot, and 11½c after 25th, deliverable at Connellsville depot, to go to Baltimore, but there are very few sellers at quoted rates, and the indications are that prices will go higher soon.

There is no change to note in Barrels; countries, $1,15@1,20; city make, $1,30.

ALLEGHENY LIVE STOCK MARKET—WEEKLY REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, April 12, 1875.

ALLEGHENY STOCK YARDS.

CATTLE.

There were, as will be seen, 679 head on sale today, of which 34 cars were from Chicago; one from Indiana, two cars from Ohio, while the balance, including one car of bulls, were from this State; the average quality was considerably better, and dealers generally reported that the average cost was greater. The market was fairly active, the best evidence of which is that the yards were pretty well cleared by 10 o'clock, and prices ruled from an ⅛@¼ higher as compared with this day week, which did not more than cover the increased cost. At the advance sellers generally, we presume, would have a slight margin for profit, providing the shrinkage in weights was not larger than usual, and the market, taking everything into consideration, including the hard times, was all, perhaps rather better than dealers had calculated upon, although it was not all by any means that the could been have desired and, furthermore, it was not up to what it usually is at this particular time.

There were sales made to-day at very close on to 8c; prime to extra steers, of fine quality, fat and smooth, fairly quotable at 7½@7¾; medium to good at 6@6¾; Bulls, 4½@5¾; of which there were about three cars on sale. Fat cows, 4@5c. There were no stockers, and so far as we could learn, no buyers; however, we look for an active inquiry for this character within the next few weeks, as this section is almost bare of cattle, and farmers generally will want more or less just as soon as the grass makes a little more headway.

Butchers, particularly those who have shops, continue to complain of business as being very unsatisfactory, and it may be attributed directly as well as indirectly to the lock-out; puddlers and others who are out of employment in consequence of the strike, owe these shop butchers largely, and as they are unable to pay for want of the wherewith, some of the latter have the most of their capital locked up on their books, and with their credit impaired, are now doing next to nothing. Many of these shop butchers have been forced to suspend business, and unless the lock-out is brought to a close before long, others will soon be forced to do likewise—it would have been better for many of them if they had quit long ago, but they hung on in hopes that the mills would soon start up, and their condition has been growing worse and worse. But few people have any idea of the damage these shop butchers and grocers have sustained in consequence of the lock-out.

Following shows the number of cattle on sale, the States they were from as well as the names of the owners:

SHEEP.

The supply, although light as compared with what it usually is at this particular time, was considerably larger than last week and fully up to the demand, and the market was slow at about former rates. Prime to extra wooled, 7@7½; common to medium, 6@6½; prime to choice clipped, 5¾@6¼; medium to fair, 4½@5¼. John Walters wholesaled 55 wooled sheep, averaging 125 lbs, at 7½, and M. A. Reed reported 50 at 7.15@7.50. There was an extra bunch of clipped on sale from Ohio, but it was held above the views of buyers, 6¾. The stock on sale was reported as follows:

John Walters	Penna	55	H. Nagle	Penna	33
Geo. Hammery	do	23	M. A. Reed	do	50

J. Montgomery	do	54	J. Walters	Ohio	86

Total number on sale 385
Total number on sale last Monday . . 322

HOGS.

The supply on sale was small, although fully up to the demand, as butchers generally have quit killing hogs, they usually slack up in their purchases at this season of the year, but we apprehend that the extreme prices has had considerable to do with it this time. Prices, as compared with last week, are higher, ranging from 8@9½c for fair to prime; and 9¾@10 for prime to extra.

FRESH COWS.

The supply was not near as large as that of last Monday, 11 head against 30, yet there was no perceptible improvement in the market, although the most of those on sale were common in point of quality. Quotations may be given as follows: $55@65 for prime milkers, $35@45 for common to fair; and $25@30 for Springers. Those on sale were reported as follows: John Beeler, 3; H. Nagle, 2; A. Stakeley, 3; P. McCaslin, 2; James Elliott, 1.

CALVES.

The market remains substantially as noted in our last report; there is a fair demand but no change in prices; 6½@7 for prime, and 5½@6 for common to fair.

J. KABERNAGLE, Sergeant Signal Service, U. S. A.

THE stage of water last evening was 8 feet 2 inches and falling. Weather continues clear and pleasant, and business is fair, about all that can be expected, although considerably behind what it usually is at this season of the year.

THE Missouri rose two feet at Sioux City on Tuesday.

THE Cherokee was announced to leave Cincinnati for this port yesterday.

PILOT JIM DOUGHERTY is much worse, and his friends have been summoned.

BOTH the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers continue to recede at headwaters.

CAPT. G. W. EBERT is making a trip on the Mollie Ebert. She is to leave Cincinnati to-day for St. Louis.

THE towboats Enterprise and Diamond arrived, and the Coal Valley, Samson No. 2 and Diamond departed.

THE Mollie Ebert arrived at Cincinnati on Sunday, and the Benton left St. Louis the same day for Fort Benton.

CAPT. JOHN NOSS, of the St. Louis and New Orleans steamer Carrie V. Kountz, is here on a visit to his family.

THE new steamer John L. Rhoads, as will be seen by card, is announced for St. Louis, and will be the first through boat out.

A BISMARCK dispatch of the 5th says:—The ice broke away in the Missouri here this morning, and the river is rising rapidly.

COL. J. M. SCHOONMAKER was in Cairo on Saturday, where he was looking after the interests of W. H. Brown, the coal king.

THE Hercules arrived at Cincinnati yesterday, and the My Choice, Charley McDonald and Sam Parker left there for this port.

THE Juniata from Cincinnati, with a big trip, was due last night, and, as will be seen by card, she is announced to return forthwith.

THE R. W. Skillinger and Salt Valley from Ironton, and Carrie Brooks from Zanesville, arrived, and the Mattie Ragon for Wheeling, and Salt Valley for Ironton departed.

ST. PAUL advices, under date of the 10th, report that old river men believe that the navigation of Lake Pepin will open by the 20th. The Mississippi is now clear of ice above and below the lake.

THE Sioux City Journal says: H. D. Booge & Co. gave each wagon belonging to the Andrews party that crossed the river for the Black Hills yesterday a 100-pound sack of flour, and caused a salute of fifty guns to be fired.

YESTERDAY'S Cincinnati Gazette says:—The Tom Rees, Sam. Millar and Belle McGowan arrived from Pittsburgh yesterday, with tows of coal, and Chas. McDonald, John Dippold and J. Sharp McDonald arrived Saturday.

THE R. W. Skillinger is the regular packet for Ironton and all intermediate points to-day, and she will receipt through to Cincinnati. This is her third trip in the trade, and Capt. Russell reports that her business is steadily increasing.

THIS was the programme last week on the Charles Bodmann: Monday, election, Johnson or Robinson; Tuesday, pillow-slip dance; Wednesday, prayer-meeting; Thursday, fancy dress ball, Friday, spelling match; Saturday, fun for everybody.

THE parties who have charge of the steamer Peninah have given up all hope of saving her, and have turned their attention to removing the machinery and other portable articles. As fast as the ice and mud wears away from under her she turns on her larboard side.

A CAIRO correspondent says:—The Ironsides left here with four barges, containing 1,200 tons of ore, and one barge containing 350 tons flour, shipstuff, hemp, clay, pig metal, old iron, &c. Her entire cargo, except the hemp, which is for Rochester, Pa., goes to Pittsburgh.

THE towboat Three Lights, one of the fastest and most powerful tugs in the Monongahela pools, celebrated its transfer to the possession of its new owners, Messrs. Nelson & Co., by a trial trip from Pittsburgh to Economy and return. There were a large number of ladies and gentlemen aboard, by whom the trip was much enjoyed.

THE fine steamer R. W. Skillinger, Captain J. T. Russell, is the regular packet for Cincinnati and all intermediate points to-day, leaving promptly at 4 P. M. The Skillinger is a permanent fixture in the trade, leaving here every Tuesday at 4 P. M., and consequently has a stronger claim than transient boats. Mr. C. B. Russell has charge of the office.

A ST. LOUIS dispatch, under date of 10th, says: The Eckert succeeded in raising the Paragon's hull last night, and brought it to the landing to-day. The river rose 8 feet since last evening, and Captain Dugan says that had he reached the wreck three hours later he could not have raised it. From $25,000 to $50,000 will be realized by the Underwriters from the wreck.

YESTERDAY'S Cincinnati Commercial says: The Cherokee, for Pittsburgh, and the Mollie Ebert, for St. Louis, depart to-day. The Hudson, for Pittsburgh, departs to-morrow.—Captain George W. Ebert is the guest of Captain Frank Y. Batchelor, and will make the round trip from Pittsburgh to St. Louis, and back, on the Mollie Ebert.

THE stock of coal at New Orleans on the 1st of the present month was about 2,500,000 bushels. The stock of coal now at and on its way to New Orleans is 178 boats, or about 4,000,000 bushels, which is a supply sufficient to last full eight months. Prices at that port rule at the ruinously low rate of about 30 to 35 cents per 180 pound barrel, and much of the stock on sale cost the dealers above that figure more than a year ago.

Money Stolen.

Mr. John Siebert, a grocer at No. 66 Penn avenue, finished counting the day's receipts about twelve o'clock last night and put them in his pocket. They amounted to $57. While he was doing the counting he was talking to a gentleman in the store, and after his financial calculations were over he went and stood beside the man and conversed with him a while longer. After the man had left Mr. Seibert discovered that his money was also gone. He got officer Crawford to follow and arrest the person, which was done, but Mr. Seibert refused to make any charge against him and the officer let him go.

A Grant Street Robbery.

Joseph A. Flemmer, a German who has only been in this country about three months, was attacked on Grant street, near Diamond alley, about half past twelve o'clock this morning and robbed of a watch and chain. Mr. Flemmer was walking down the street with his hands in his pockets when a large negro came up to him, and putting his arm through Mr. Flemmer's said, "Come along with me," at the same time robbing him of his watch and chain. Such proceedings not being according to Mr. Flemmer's fancy he tackled the fellow and was getting the better of him when the negro slipped out of his coat and fled, leaving the garment in Mr. Flemmer's possession but taking the watch and chain. Mr. Flemmer reported the affair at the Central Station, where he also left the coat, which the owner can have upon calling for it.

A Spelling Match—A Model Report.

The people of Mt. Pleasant have had a "spell" of the popular amusement in which people of other places have so eagerly engaged. Here written and oral spelling were used. Among the hard words pronounced were the following, and a few not found in the "unabridged:" Pinafore, Corsair, Plaquing, Hieroglyphics, Kerosene, Eleemosynary, Dishabille, Lachrymose, Ricochet, Connoisseur, Colporteur, Coautchouc, Guillotine, &c. There were altogether fifty words. A report of the number of words missed by each speller is given, from which the following is copied:

	Oral.	Written.	Total.
A. W. M'Creary	2	7	9
G. S. M'Caleb	0	0	0
J. S. Newmyer	0	4	4
G. W. Overholt	0	6	6
J. Henderson	1	15	16

We recommend a similar method for the grand spelling contest between Allegheny and Pittsburgh. Let the party who foots the least number of mistakes be considered the victor.

Spelling Match in Allegheny.

A spelling match was held last evening in the Sandusky street Baptist church, Allegheny City. Prof. L. H. Eaton officiated as pronouncer, Rev. B. F. Woodburn and Prof. Daniel as referees, and Mr. J. Young and Miss Anna Marshall as Captains. Twenty were chosen on each side, and the spelling proceeded. The first word missed was "append;" others missed were "antidote," "simony," "oscillate," "mortgage," "alpaca," "gayety," saccharine," "mustaches," "aporpha," "lyrical," &c. Finally the spellers had all retired except Miss Marshall, of the Second ward school, Pittsburgh, and Miss Brown, of the Fifth ward, Allegheny. The spelling was then an orthographical duel between the two cities. The spelling books were exhausted and Geographical names tried. Miss Brown succumbed on "Mecklenburg." Miss Marshall was then presented with a beautiful miniature dictionary. A present was offered to the first unlucky speller, which he did not wish to keep. The attendance was large and the entertainment very enjoyable.

WATCH STOLEN.

Robbery on Troy Hill.

About two o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. John Gast, who resides on Lowrie street, Troy Hill, Allegheny, entered his residence and, as he did not feel very well, he went up stairs and laid down. Before doing so he hung his vest containing his gold watch and chain in the hallway in the lower story. He had been lying down but a short time when he heard some person rapping at the door down stairs, but, thinking that some other member of the family would answer the rap, paid no further attention to it. Shortly afterwards he arose and went down stairs, when he found his front door open and his gold watch and chain gone. There is no clue to the thieves.

THE "EXTRA" TAXES.

The Question Likely to Come Before the Courts.

Now that the question has been raised as to the legality of charging ten per cent. on taxes not paid before October 1st of each year, it is likely that it will reach the Courts. Yesterday Mr. John Ogden, collector of delinquent taxes in the Third ward, Allegheny, was refused payment of the extra per cent. in two instances, and in another case the party paid it, though under protest.

It is quite likely, now that a start has been made, that the objections will very frequently be made, and the question will have to be finally settled by the Court before the collectors will be relieved of trouble in making their collections.

ANOTHER STRIKE.

Some of the Employes of the Eagle Cotton Mill Refuse to Work.

Yesterday morning shortly after the machinery in the Eagle Cotton Mill in Allegheny had been put in motion, the Superintendent, Mr. Joel Smith, was somewhat surprised, in making his usual round, to find about fifty operatives idle in the spinning department. On asking what such a state of affairs meant, he was informed by some that the employes wanted an advance in their wages, while others said they would not work under the new superintendent, who had just gone on duty in the morning, his predecessor having resigned the position to go West. The girls were ordered to resume work or leave within five minutes, and most of them did the latter, retiring in good order, but when they got outside of the building they cheered loud enough to be heard for several squares.

At noon several of their number had returned to work, and others followed during the afternoon. It is thought the whole force will be in their places this morning, as the matter of working under a new foreman often occasions such strikes among factory girls.

THE LECTURE SEASON.

The Falling off in Receipts—A Season Not Remarkable for Pecuniary Success.

The Lecture Committee of the Library Association have been taking a look over their accounts of the past season, and the revelations made are not of a very encouraging character in a financial way. There were sixteen lectures given under the auspices of the Committe, and among them were some of the best lectures ever given in Pittsburgh. With one or two exceptions the lectures were good. The exceptions were those of some who came with strong endorsements, but who failed to come up to the standard, and really for a time cast a shadow over the course. The committee at the outstart, feeling that the depressing influences of the times would be against them, labored with unusual zeal to make the course a success, and left nothing undone that would add to its success. There has perhaps never been year in which the work of the Committee was so thoroughly performed, or in which more general satisfaction was given; but notwithstanding these efforts the results were not pecuniarily gratifying. No attraction seemed sufficient to crowd the house,—Gough, even not proving as great a "card" as had been anticipated. The receipts during the season as compared with the previous year, were fully thirty per cent. less; yet the expenses were about the same; hence the balance sheet does not show a very handsome profit. It is, under all the circumstances, only too fortunate that it does not show a positive loss. We are sorry, however, that the untiring efforts of Capt. Herbert and his associates have not been more liberally rewarded, for certainly they deserved to be.

The result in Pittsburgh however, is but a repetition of the general experience of managers throughout the country. The amusement season of 1874-5, has not in any place been attended with great success, and the almost unanimous report is that the receipts have fallen off from 40 to 50 per cent. The expenses however are about the same, and thus the managers principally suffer. In the lecture department this is particularly the case. Lecturers last season, obtained as good prices as during the war, in some instances, and the tariff was really so high that after the payment of the lecture fee, there was comparatively little left for other expenses or profits. Lecturers secured prices ranging from $125 to $300—the majority ranging at figures in the neighborhood of $175. The tariff next season will either have to be revised, or "the course" in many places will be abandoned.

So far as our city is concerned, the record shows rather better than in the majority of cities where Lyceum entertainments have been given. And this result is owing to the labors of the committee, to whom lecture goers in our community owe a vote of thanks for the enjoyment of many an hour of pleasure and profit during the season which has closed.

THE WILKINSBURG ANNEXATION.

The Decree of the Court and Exceptions Filed.

In the Common Pleas Court No. 2, yesterday, the following decree was entered in the case of the annexation of the Thirty-seventh ward to the city, in which James Kelly was plaintiff and the city of Pittsburgh and Henry B. Stoller et al. were defendants: "This case came to be heard at this term upon the bill, supplemental bill, answers, reports of the master and evidence, and was argued by the counsel, and thereupon, and upon consideration thereof, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows, viz.: That the ordinance of the city of Pittsburgh entitled "an ordinance to provide for the admission into the city of a portion of Wilkins township," passed by the Councils thereof on the 12th day of May, A. D. 1873, is null, void, and of no effect; that a writ of injunction be granted and is hereby ordered to issue against the defendants, the city of Pittsburgh, perpetually restraining the said city from levying taxes upon the lands of the plaintiff, mentioned in his bill, and situate in that part of the township of Wilkins described in the bill, and from collecting any city taxes assessed thereon, and restraining the said city of Pittsburgh from exercising corporate or municipal authority in pursuance of the aforesaid ordinance, over any part of said Wilkins township, described in the plaintiff's bill; and it is further ordered that the city of Pittsburgh pay the costs of this suit."

The following exceptions were filed by the defendants counsel, the first two of which were overruled by the Court and the last one sustained:

First—For that said decree purports to be predicted in part upon the supplemental bill filed in said case, whereas said supplemental bill was not before the master, nor considered by him, and was considered by counsel on both sides as out of the case, and for that reason no testimony was taken in reference to it.

Second—That said decree in respect to restraining collection of taxes is beyond and outside of the relief prayed for in said original bill.

Third—That no decree should be entered as against the individual defendants, they having never answered nor been ruled to answer, and the Court having no jurisdiction of the case in respect to the matters, charged against said defendants in said bill, and that the same should be dismissed as to them.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

A Proposed Union—A General Convention Talked of—A Preliminary Meeting.

Allegheny county has at least eighteen flourishing literary societies—or at least there were representatives from eighteen such organizations at a meeting held in the Fourth ward school hall, Allegheny, last evening. The object of the meeting was to discuss the propriety of forming a central organization or general convention in which each society could be represented by delegates.

The meeting was organized with Mr. Fred. W. Kiefer, of the Fourth Ward Lyceum, as Chairman, and Mr. E. A. Smith, of the Irving, as Secretary.

The object of the gathering was then discussed in an informal way, and a decision finally arrived at to go into an organization as proposed.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Ed. Craig, George Seebick, Thomas D. Chantler, Albert Burkowitz, and J. Milton Jones was appointed to suggest a plan for the organization.

This committee, after a brief absence, reported in favor of forming a central union, and recommended the appointment of a committee to prepare a constitution for the new union. In the meantime, the preliminary organization adopted for the evening could remain until the permanent organization was effected.

The report was received and adopted.

A committee was then appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws, to fix upon a time for holding the general convention, and to report at a future meeting.

After which the meeting adjournd.

····Louis Engel, whose parents reside at No. 133 East Lane, Allegheny, has been missing since Friday last. He is a boy about thirteen years of age, and about four o'clock of the day named he left the German school, on Second street, Allegheny, which he was attending, and nothing has been heard of him since. He wore a brown sack overcoat, a slouch hat and dark cassimere pants. Any information concerning him will be thankfully received by his parents.

····Now that the Mayor has appointed from the police force three men who are to be known as the Roving Commissioners, and have supervision over the entire city would not the arrangement have additional efficiency if the Commissioners were placed on horseback? They have large districts to watch and they could attend to their duties much more satisfactorily and expeditiously if mounted. The Black Maria team has comparatively little to do and it would be only necessary to purchase one more horse.

····Alderman Donley, of the South Side, held Dennis Bracken and John Ayres to bail yesterday, they having been charged with stealing iron from the American Iron Works by Jacob Koehler. Warrants were issued by the same magistrate for the arrest of John Coyne and others unknown, who are charged by officer John Moore with robbing the freight cars of the P. V. & C. R. R. Co. and carrying away therefrom a quantity of butter, raisins, tobacco, tea, coffee, etc. The cars were broken into at various times when lying on the switches near Brownstown.

····It is said that a number of puddlers are negotiating for the lease of two South Side rolling mills, for the purpose of running them on the co-operative plan. The lease, if made out and signed, is to continue for a term of five years, and the members of the company are to subscribe $1,000 each to the new project. Wharton's mill is said to be one of the establishments the men are after, and the mills belonging to Messrs. Mullin & Maloney, at Wood Run, the other. Those who have the matter in charge seem quite hopeful of success.

····The GAZETTE has taken to using second hand tea leaves. After "steeping" the leaves each day in the Telegraph, the Bohe-mians of the oldest dish them up fresh for breakfast Monday morning.—Telegraph. Which is simply one of those pleasant fictions, for which the Telegraph is famed. The jottings in the GAZETTE of yesterday morning, were in no sense reproductions of anything which had appeared in our evening cotemporary, and if the brilliant Bohemian who dashed off the above Telegraphic squib had taken a little less Bohea, or something else, he would have been able to read aright and thus have saved himself from an assinine display of his driveling humor exhibited at the expense of his veracity.

ANOTHER MURDER TRIAL.

Philip Murray to be Placed on Trial This Morning for the Murder of Jas. White.

Another murder trial will be begun in the Criminal Court this morning, in which Philip Murray will be tried for shooting James White, at Zug's rolling mill, on the fifth day of last September. It will be recollected that about noon of the day named, Murray purchased a revolver and went to the mill where White worked and shot him. Several shots were fired by Murray, the one which proved fatal having struck White in the mouth and lodged in the base of his brain. Death resulted from this wound on September 11th. Michael Murray, a brother of Philip, was charged with being an accessory before the fact, but the Grand Jury ignored the bill against him. The defence will be that Murray was imposed upon and abused by White, who was a much larger man than he, and that at the time of the actual shooting he thought White was about to attack him.

District Attorney Montooth and A. G. Cochran, Esq., will appear for the Commonwealth and Messrs. Marshall and Reardon for the prisoner.

The ninth annual meeting of the contributors to the Homeopathic Hospital and Dispensary will be held to-day, April 13, at three o'clock P. M. Annual reports will be presented, and an address suitable to the occasion, made. Friends of the institution are invited. J. H. MCCLELLAND, Secretary.

FIRE IN ALLEGHENY.

A Dwelling House and Stable Damaged—Supposed Work of an Incendiary.

Last night about ten o'clock an alarm of fire was struck from Box 21, Second ward, Allegheny. At the same time the sky in the northwest was illuminated by a bright light, which seemed to indicate an extensive conflagration, and which induced throngs of people to start in the direction of the fire. It proved to be a frame stable fronting on Taylor avenue, one door from the corner of Irwin avenue. There were some cattle in the stable at the time, but as the fire was in the second story when discovered, the cattle were brought out without much difficulty. There were several tons of hay and grain in the second story which burned fiercely. The fire communicated to the rear part of the Wm. Tell House, setting fire to the roof; but the firemen, who were promptly on the ground, soon had it in check. The contents of the stable and the building were destroyed, involving a loss of about $150. The stable which was a very flimsey affair, was owned by Mr. Ziegler and was rented by Philip Hahn and Moreland Myers, upon whom the loss fell. The Wm. Tell house is owned by the heirs of Samuel Young, and was occupied by Gotleib Braunstrettèr, who estimates his loss at $150. He is fully insured in the Humboldt Insurance Company. The others were not insured.

A FEW WORDS TO FEEBLE AND DELICATE WOMEN.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D., of the WORLD'S DISPENSARY, Buffalo, N. Y.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong, and the longer it is neglected the more you have to endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who is daily consulted by scores of your sex, desire to say to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been treated for their ailments for months without being benefited in the least, until they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost made up their minds never to take another dose of medicine, nor be tortured by any further treatment. They had rather die and have their sufferings ended than to live and suffer as they have. They say they are worn out by suffering and are only made worse by treatment. Of anything more discouraging, we certainly cannot conceive, and were there no more successful mode of treating such difficulties than that, the principles of which teach the reducing and depleting of the vital forces of the system, when the indications dictate a treatment directly the reverse of the one adopted for them, their cases would be deplorable indeed. But lady sufferers, there is a better and far more successful plan of treatment for you; one more in harmony with the laws and requirements of your system. A harsh irritating caustic treatment and strong medicines will never cure you. If you would use rational means, such as common sense should dictate to every intelligent lady, take such medicines as embody the very best invigorating tonics and nervines, compounded with special reference to your delicate system. Such a happy combination you will find in my Favorite Prescription which has received the loudest praise from thousands of your sex. Those languid tiresome sensations causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet or ascend a flight of stairs, that continual drain that is sapping from your systems all your former elasticity, and driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces that renders you irritable and fretful, may all be overcome and subdued by a persevering use of that marvelous remedy. Irregularities and obstructions to the proper workings of your systems are relieved by this mild and safe means, while periodical pains, the existence of which is a sure indication of serious disease that should not be neglected, readily yield to it, and if its use is kept up for a reasonable length of time the special cause of these pains is permanently removed. Further light on these subjects may be obtained from my pamphlet on diseases peculiar to your sex, sent on receipt of two stamps. My Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists.

AMUSEMENTS.

Pittsburgh Opera House.

The audience was a large one last night, indeed very large for an opening performance, and for over two hours and a half a continual ripple of laughter played over it, laughter which frequently bursted into a storm of applause. The play, as is well known, was Mark Twain's "Gilded Age," and the pleasing anticipations which many had entertained concerning it were not disappointed, but fully realized. The author has given his production an appropriate name, viewing it from Col. Sellers' standpoint, for to him the age was certainly gilded in fancy but never in fact. The inimitable peculiarities of Mr. Twain's humor are all concentrated in the character of Col. Mulberry Sellers. None of the other roles are at all humorous. In the leading one is all the fun and nearly all the interest. To hear Col. Sellers develop his rosy hued ideas of the millions to be made from the gigantic speculations which his fertile brain has conceived, and which are to be put on foot by the aid of his friend, Senator Dilworthy, is almost the acme of fun. Mr. Raymond acts the part so thoroughly that he completely loses his own individuality, and the listener thinks of and sees no one but Col. Sellers, who is the embodiment of that quaint, irresistible humor which distinguishes Mark Twain only, and so minutely, yet naturally, does Mr. Raymond bring out every detail that in the creation one can hardly fail to recognize the creator. No one but the author of "Roughing It" could have made such a character as Col. Sellers. There is about it nothing overdrawn, nothing wanting, nothing impossible, and to it there is nothing similar. It is an entirely new dramatic creation, and stands peerless, solitary and alone. As other writers have said, it is American in every sense of the word, and illustrates a well known phase of life in this country which no dramatist has ever touched upon before, probably because to do it justice requires a faculty of appreciation and a keenness of observation which all men do not possess. Having seen the "Gilded Age," it is not difficult to understand the success it has won everywhere, and why it ran for 120 nights at the Park Theatre, in New York. It is meritorious; it is no counterfeit, no imitation, and, recognizing these facts, the public stamps it as genuine. The plot of the play amounts to nothing. Indeed the scenes are so loosely shifted about, and the unities so comparatively disregarded, that one is confirmed in the belief that it was not the authors purpose to write a play so much as it was to create a new character. Col. Sellers will live to amuse, but not to instruct, long after Mr. Twain's quill has been laid aside.

Everything moved off smoothly and satisfactorily last night. The actors all knew their lines and sustained their roles well, though we are inclined to the belief that if Mr. Crompton had been cast for the part of Si. Hawkins, which Mr. Owen enacted, additional force would have been imparted to the performance. Mr. Owen did very well indeed, and we have no disposition to criticise, but he is much more at home in comedy characters, and Mr. Crompton could have personated Si. Hawkins admirably. Mr. S. W. Glenn appeared in the last act as District Attorney; Mr. Price appeared as Col. Geo Selby, Mr. Egbert as Clay Hawkins, Miss Troy as Laura Hawkins, Katie Baker as Emily Hawkins, Mrs. Baker as Mrs. Si. Hawkins, and the balance of the company in the remaining roles. "The Gilded Age" will be played every night this week, and we can assure our readers that it will afford them the highest and purest pleasure to hear it.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

On the three last evenings of this week and at a matinee on Saturday the play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented at the Academy of Music with Mrs. Howard in the character of Topsy. Pittsburgh is a favorite place with Mrs. Howard, because she never lets a season slip by without visiting here, and she is a favorite with Pittsburgh because she never fails to draw well when she does come. Reserved seats can be bought at Hale's music store.

Essay Contest.

The annual essay contest at the Pittsburgh Female College, on Eighth street, takes place this evening. All previous entertainments of this character have been largely attended and proved very interesting, and we have no doubt but that the one to-night will be fully up to the standard. The exercises will be interspersed with vocal and instrumental music.

Rubenstein Club.

The first vocal and instrumental concert by the Rubenstein Club will be given this evening at Saulsbury Hall, Diamond square, South Side. It promises to be a very enjoyable musical entertainment, judging from the bill before us. The admission has been fixed at 35 and 50 cents.

Germania Orchestra.

At Library Hall next Friday afternoon the ninth of the Germania Orchestra concerts will be given. The programme exhibits judicious selections. Mr. Jno. J. Benitz, the baritone, will assist in the performance.

Trimble's Varieties.

No better variety performances will be presented in this city this week than are given nightly at Trimble's. The programme is one of the best which Mr. Aims has prepared this season and it affords an evenings good entertainment.

Unprecedented Bargains.

Although it is generally known that better goods are offered for less money at the Boston Clothing House, No. 95 Smithfield street, than elsewhere in the city, even old patrons would be astonished upon ascertaining just what this house is prepared to do this spring. If you want a spring overcoat, a suit or single garment of any description go to the Boston Clothing House and select one to suit your taste, and our word for it, you will make no objection to the price and ask for no reduction. The best goods for the least money are the inducements at the Boston House. Are they sufficient?

Artificial Stone.

Among inventions that have satisfied the expectations of the inventor, and proved to be of genuine worth, by substantiating the claims of service and durability, is that of artificial stone, which, used for side-walks, cellar floors, vaults, and all other kindred uses, has never yet found its superior for cheapness in cost, for beauty of appearance and resistance to heavy pressure, as well as long-continued wear.

A Tonic of Rare Merit.

There are many tonics, but few indeed which produce any other effect than artificial stimulation of the appetite. This, so far from being a benefit, is a positive detriment, if the digestive organs are weak, because it induces the patient to eat more than the semi paralyzed stomach can act upon, and aggravates indigestion. There is, however, a tonic which possesses the rare merit of imparting both vigor and regularity to the operations of nutrition. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters provoke a wholesome appetite, because they enable the stomach to dispose of what it receives with such healthful rapidity that at the proper time for meals it is not torpid from indigested matter, but craves its timely sustenance. It is the very fact that it facilitates digestion that renders the national stomachic such a powerful coadjutor of nature in instituting those recuperative processes which result in the recovery of the general health. Uninterrupted, vigorous action of the physical machinery inevitably results from the use of this supreme invigorant and alterative.
